T-Mobile, AT&T, Sprint and Others Donate Equipment to Haitian Telecom Voilà for Earthquake Relief Effort

Trilogy International Partners and its Voilà Subsidiary Rebuild Network in Haiti

February 2, 2010, Bellevue, Washington, USA: In response to the earthquake in Haiti, Trilogy International Partners (TIP) and its Haitian wireless company, Voilà, are receiving immediate support in the form of equipment donations from some of the world's largest telecom companies: T-Mobile, AT&T and Sprint as well as phone manufacturers and distributors Sony Ericsson, Motorola, Samsung, LG, CT Miami, RIM and Brightstar. Communications are vital in the wake of a disaster, and these companies promptly offered critical equipment — phones, cells on wheels (COWs), generators, vehicles, fixed wireless terminals and solar cell phone chargers — to TIP for its subsidiary, Voilà. With these donations, Voilà is able to accelerate the rebuilding process, provide phones and airtime to multiple relief organizations, and provide critical means of communication to the Haitian community.

Voilà was the first major wireless carrier to restore service after the earthquake. Nearly 90 percent of its cell sites are back in operation. However, for those sites that were destroyed, new equipment is being urgently shipped to ensure seamless coverage and to meet unprecedented demand for communications services. Voilà has provided tens of thousands of phones to relief agencies and deployed its own complement of temporary cell sites. Now, other members of the global wireless communications fraternity have stepped forward to help, enabling TIP and Voilà to continue their rebuilding efforts without interruption.

John W. Stanton, Trilogy's chairman, is pleased with the assistance that Voilà has received. "We've been working with fellow carriers and equipment suppliers for many years, and it's terrific to see them respond immediately to help us in Haiti. They know that to recover from a catastrophe you need a reliable communications system — and they have been generous in offering the equipment that's essential for Voilà to continue serving the Haitian people and the thousands of volunteers who have arrived to provide assistance. We are very grateful for the industry's support."

Restoring Voilà's network has been significantly strengthened by the following companies' generosity and quick response:

- T-Mobile, which provided 10,000 cell phones, 42 generators, 10 COWs, 7 trucks, and approximately 500 cell phone solar chargers
- AT&T, which provided 8,000 cell phones and 150 fixed wireless terminals with partners Brightstar, Sony Ericsson and Motorola
- Sprint, which provided two portable towers
- LG, Samsung, CT Miami and RIM, which provided additional cell phones and BlackBerry devices
